

Where to find Scholarships

You have to love scholarships, it's free money for College expenses. The problem with most scholarship websites is that you have to register and sign up for their site before you get to search their scholarship database. This is an annoying and time consuming experience. The main reason scholarship websites do this is to have your email address on file so they can "spam" you, or send monthly updates on scholarships. There are not too many scholarship websites out there that offer free access to searching for scholarships. We are in the process of creating and developing a College Scholarship website that enables both student to search scholarships and business to be able to post scholarships all for free unlimited access.

There are however a few great scholarship sites out there that have huge databases of scholarships, so it may be worth giving up your email address to gain access to these sources of funding. Some scholarships may be time consuming, requiring a written essay, or something similar, so make sure you qualify for all the requirements and follow College Scholarship Tips.

Since most scholarship sites require you to enter personal information, it's important to find a site you can trust. You don't want them selling your info or trying to scam you. For instance, many scam scholarship sites ask for a "fee". This should never be the case and if you see this, stay away from the site.

When looking for scholarships, check out these websites that offer an extensive list of current scholarships. These are some of the best scholarships websites out there:

- FastWeb

The cool thing about FastWeb is that their scholarship search results are personalized. When a user signs up they fill out a personalized questionnaire about themselves which is used as the basis for the scholarship results they provide. Scholarships are broken down by scholarship type, college, internship, job, need based, academic and more. This will save you time by not displaying the scholarships you may not be eligible for. FastWeb is the best scholarship site out there and it is highly recommended to check them out and get your hands on some free money for College.

- College Board

The College Board Scholarship search may have a lengthy questionnaire, but you have to remember that the more information you can provide for these search companies, the more detailed and targeted scholarships they can find for you. Though time consuming, filling out the required information will save you time in the long run, as you go down your list of eligible scholarships.

- Scholarships.com

Registering here can gain you access to 2.7 million scholarships & grants worth over $19 billion. They have both local & national college scholarships on file.

You can also receive notifications and updates on new scholarships & upcoming deadlines.

- Studentscholarshipsearch.com

Does not require registration to browse or search scholarships. Scholarships are conveniently divided into respective categories.

- Mach 25

A keyword search based scholarship site that provides basic information and how to apply for many scholarships across the nation.

All these sites have great access to huge databases of scholarships. The leader in the industry and best scholarship search site by far is FastWeb.
