
7 Creative and Uniquely Designed Graduation Announcements

With graduation ceremonies just around the corner, many soon to be graduates have a lot to get done before their big day. One item on this massive to do list is sending out graduation announcements. Students send out these graduation announcements to family, friends, and relatives to notify them of the time and place of the ceremony (and to say, "Hey, I'm graduating so send money!").

Announcements sold through the school can often be expensive and include way more than is needed. If you are the creative, do-it-yourself type, you can make these yourself and make them look pretty good at the same time, all while saving money.

The ideas here for making your own graduation announcements are pretty much endless. Here we'll take a look at 7 creative and uniquely designed graduation announcements to help spur your imagination.

1.

2.

3.

4.

5.

6.

7.

You can see how the use of photos in graduation announcements really adds a personal touch and is much better looking than the mass produced graduation cards. The examples shown here range from the elegant and stylish to the witty and humorous.